Boyle Finds Stalin Cautious Man Who Doesn't Want War

Missed His Chance for World Rule If He Desired It

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—Why doesn't Soviet Russia attack the United States today?

I might if I were ruling Russia and had committed my country to the presumptuous idea it could conquer the world by force.

Russia is so committed by its clear-spoken adherence to Marxist revolutionary doctrine. Why doesn't it now launch a full-scale assault against the battered European ramparts of western capitalism? It has the hugest peacetime army in history—and battle-trained.

The answer lies in a cautious man now living and a bold man years dead

The live man is phlegmatic Josef Stalin. The dead man was his old ideological enemy, Leon Trotsky, one of the intellectual skyrockets of history.

The quarrel that divided those two inheritors of Lenin, Communism's demi-god still is a big factor influencing the peace of the world in 1948

From his grave, bearded Trosky cries:

"Fight for the world-wide rule of the proletariat today!"

In the Kremlin Stalin, the man believed by some to be behind Trostky's murder in Mexico, says nothing and bides his time. He waits with buffalo patience to consolidate the gains of Communism within his own country before launching his fist against the world, a fist that sometime has to

Collection Feature of Wallace Meet

New York, Sept. 11—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace, back from his hectic southern tour, got a booming reception last night from a crowd of 48,000 at Yankee Stadium.

Sponsors called the rally the biggest paid-admission political meeting in the history of the United States

Wallace, interrupted frequently by long and thunderous applause, told the throng that he had tasted the "ugly realities of facism" during his tour of the south.

But he said the important thing about the tour, during which he was pelted with eggs and tomatoes, at some stops, was not the "ugly spewings of hate and prejudice."

"The significance of our southern trip," he said "lies in the two dozen completely unsegregated, peaceful meetings which we were able to hold."

The Progressive party presidential candidate was given a roaring six-minute ovation as he stepped to the speaker's stand.

A rally official said 60,000 rally tickets were sold Thursday—for from 60 cents to $3.60 each and more were sold yesterday. Total sales amounted to approximately $72,000, he said.

Another estimated $50,000 was raised during a fund-collecting period that preceded Wallace's address in addition to "bill-a-head" contributions gathered by ushers from the audience.

Roundup of Developments in Nation Political Picture by AP

Washington, Sept. 11—(AP)—President Truman has abandoned plans for a lengthy southern campaign tour, friends said today as the Dixie revolt against his civil rights program mounted.

While Truman will make some appearances in the south, they said, strategic spots either will be selected on a brief, single-trip basis or added to other general schedules

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey meanwhile disclosed plans for eight major talks on his transcontinental tour, following close on the heels of Truman's westward swing.

Dewey's opener is in Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 20. Like the president, he is scheduled to speak in San Francisco and Los Angeles. He will continue on to Oregon and Washington before heading back.

Although the Republicans and Democrats are ranging the domestic field in their political scuffling, they are in agreement on keeping basic foreign policy by-partison.

The controversy on the domestic program meanwhile, broke out anew.

Senator Edward Martin (R-Pa) charged Truman with resorting to 'the most indecent kind of political trickery and political dishonesty" in blaming the 80th congress for inflation.

Martin told a Republican state committee in Pittsburgh in a prepared address that the European recovery program and a $14,000,000,000 defense outlay are helping keep prices up. He noted that Truman advocated both of these moves.

Senator Baldwin of Connecticut also blamed Truman for high prices. A Republican administration, he said, would attack inflation "on a broad base." But he ruled out price controls.

Baldwin, who sponsored a con-

Collision

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—Hundreds of song birds winging south in darkness apparently crashed into the Empire State building early today and plunged dead in the streets around the world's tallest structure.

After dawn workers still were collecting the bodies of the brightly plumaged birds. They included thrushes and warblers. Many landed on auto tops and smashed against windshields

Nations of Western Europe Work Out Aid Fund Division

Britain, France to Draw Largest Amounts in Aid Program

Paris Sept. 11—(AP) The nations of western Europe today reached the first milestone in working together for mutual recovery when their delegates agreed on the division of $4,875,000,000 in American aid funds

The decision for the first year of the European recovery program (ERP) embraces a system of intra-European assistance which has still to be filled out by an agreement on currency exchanges.

The council of the European Economic Cooperation organization prepared these agreements in a six-hour session last night. Work on the scheme for currency payments will continue today.

To Alter Programs

As soon as the council agrees on the currency proposals it will go to work on the details of the 1948-49 recovery program for submission to the American Economic Cooperation Administration. Each participating nation is to alter its program to conform with the aid allotments drawn up last night. The complete program should be ready by Sept. 25.

The proposed division of American aid for the first year, as revealed by the council, gave Britain the greatest amount- $1,223,000,000. This was a cut of $10,000,000 from the British portion in the

Youth Center Head Charged With Rape

Maj. Robert A O'Neal said Lowell signed a statement admitting he had sexual relations with two girls at the institution. The rape charge was filed after it was determined one of the girls was under 16 years

Maj. O'Neal said Lowell, married and the father of two small children, stated that he had relations with the girls because they had become emotional problems in the institution.

Lowell has a long record of social work He majored in psychology at the University of Wisconsin and did graduate work at George Williams college.

Gov. Green Proves His Belief in Fundamental Rights of Citizens

Chicago, Sept 11—(AP)—The Progressive party today was a step nearer a place on the Nov. 2 ballot when Gov. Green, as a member of the state certifying board, waived immunity to mandamus proceedings.

The Progressives, ruled off the state ballot by the electoral board on ground it had not complied with the law requiring 200 signatures from at least 50 counties, plan to ask the state Supreme court Monday to rule the petitions valid.

A technicality, however, apparently blocked the court plea. The governor, amember of the certifying board cannot be the target of mandamus proceedings.

Green removed the technicality by signing a waiver He said in a statement. "It is a fundamental principle of our system of government that each citizen should have the right to vote for the party or the candidate of his choice."

Meanwhile in East St. Louis, Mrs. Beatrice Kadas, a Progressive official, resigned her two party posts on ground of "organizational difficulties."

She declined to comment further on her reason for quitting the Illinois board of directors and her chairmanship of the 25th congressional district organization.

Emery Lounsbury Aids Officers in Identifying His Loot

Mrs Carol Macbeth of Sterling, removed from the Lee to the Whiteside county jail Friday morning by Sheriff Boyd Kimmell, was straighted upon her return to Sterling She entered a not guilty plea when she faced charges of being an accessory to robberies and the bond was reduced from $25,000 to $5,000 which was furnished by her father, Clyde Bowlesby, retired Sterling postal employe

Victims of robberies committed within the past two and one-half years continued to view the cache of loot housed in the Sterling police station, in an effort to identify some of the remaining articles.

Emery Lounsbury, ex-convict now on parole, was reported to be aiding the Whiteside county authorities in their efforts to identify articles taken from Mrs. Macbeth's home in a surprise raid Wednesday night Lounsbury in viewing the loot attempted to recall the location where it had been taken. He is being held in the Whiteside county jail in Morrison under $25,000 bond.

Woman's Hotel Plunge Accidental, Says Jury

Chicago, Sept. 11—(AP)—A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the fatal plunge of Rose Dubrovich, 24, of Hammond, Ind., from a Chicago hotel room Sunday.

Miss Dubrovich, of 3009 Parkway North, plunged from a third floor room of the Exchange hotel at 954 Exchange avenue.

William Rayfield, 51, a Chicago boilermaker, was quoted by Deputy Coroner Eugene P. Ingles as saying he and Miss Dubrovich had been living together at the hotel for a month.

Ingles said Rayfield told him both had been drinking Saturday night and then went to their room after which Rayfield suddenly realized his companion was gone.

Six witnesses testified they had seen the woman at the window of the room several times before she plunged.

A disorderly conduct charge against Rayfield will be heard Sept. 14 in the south Chicago court.

Long and Careful Thought Is Urged on Furnishings

Many Home Builders Employ Interior Decorators for Job

By CHARLES HONCE

Every home owner wants attractive rooms.

Some people employ interior decorators; others nose through the home magazines and newspapers for suggestions. Most are afraid to go it on their own. There is no reason, however, why this should be so.

Here are a few tips from one who has been his own decorator for more than 25 years and is quite pleased with his handiwork.

Style of Furniture

You have built your house or are in the process of building it and your thoughts now are on furnishings. My first advice is to give long and prayerful thought to the style of furniture you intend to use. When you have made up your mind, stick to it through thick and thin. Almost everything that goes into your home should conform in some manner to the style or the period you have selected.

In other words, uniformity in a home is a virtue, and you undoubtedly will be pleased with the results. This does not mean that your interiors should have a rigorously set look to the point of being static. Rather they should be what might be described as casually formal. Livable probably describes it better.

This uniformity can be applied to wall color schemes as well as furnishings. A home I have specifically in mind has a universal color from living room straight through the kitchen. Two rooms are papered—a bedroom and the dining room. The paper in each is the same. Thus a background unity has been achieved but with a rather unusual modulation.

Then, for instance, the lampshades in every room are exactly the same. The main objects of art in every room are of the same shade—white. The curtains are the same throughout; likewise the drapes and to a considerable extent the floor coverings. And so it goes. You match up certain background things and the general effect will be one of pleasing uniformity devoid of monotony.

Get Good Things

Never buy cheap furnishings. You will kick yourself if you do. It is far better to limit your purchases and have them first rate than to lay in a full set of shoddy eyesores which will haunt you for years. I repeat, get good things even if you have to sleep on the packing box.

The patina of good furniture is a joy to behold. And it will grow steadily more beautiful with age. Good furnishings include dishes and tableware. Get dishes for four or even two if you can't afford more at the start. All good china and porcelain wares are open stock and can be added to from time to time.

Blend Colors

Don't be afraid of colors. If attractive shades are selected you can mix colors all over the place without horrendous results. My living room has a lavender rug, deep sea-blue walls, sharp lemon yellow drapes and fireplace chairs, purple corner chairs, milk white bric-a-brac, a mauve sofa, white fireplace lots of shining brass and with additional touches here and there of every other color ever dreamed of. Believe it or not, the over-all effect is subdued and restful. In fact, you don't seem to note the color at all because of the blending.

Here are two little suggestions which will pay dividends: (a) If you have your mind set on a certain article and you can't find exactly what you want don't buy anything else, even though it may be somewhat near what you have in mind. You will never be satisfied. Also, in due course, you are likely to see exactly what you do want. (b) If you see an object in a newspaper, window, or a store and you think it is beautiful and that it will look swell in some certain spots in your home, buy it—if you have the money. If you only make a mental note on the theory that next week you'll step in and acquire this little number you always will find it is gone.. More over, it never seems to show up again anywhere.

A few miscellaneous suggestions:

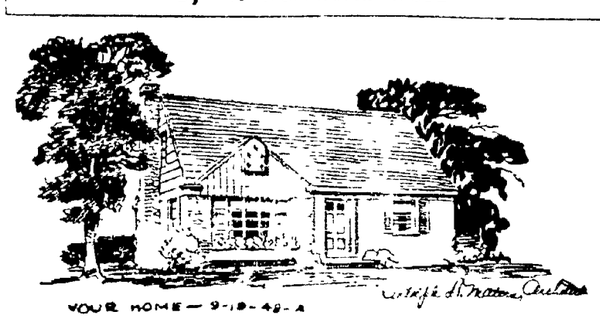

Most pictures are hung too high. It is best to consider the proper spot while sitting rather than standing. Rooms are made to sit in.

Don't overcrowd your rooms either with furniture or bric-a-brac.

Don't clutter up mantel pieces.

Your Home Today and Tomorrow

By W. Wadsworth Wood

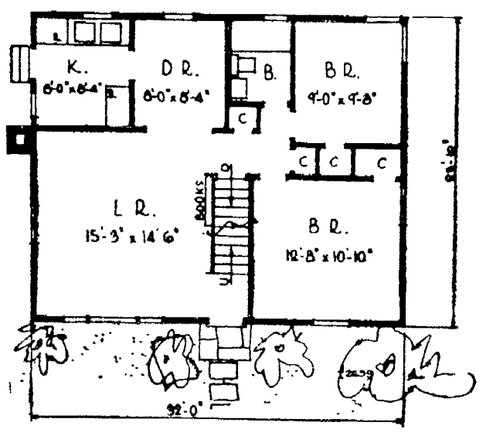

YOUR HOME—9-10-48-A

At first glance the house illustrated appears to be a conventional one-story structure, but in reality it has two full floors and offers four bedrooms, three of which are unusually large for a small house.

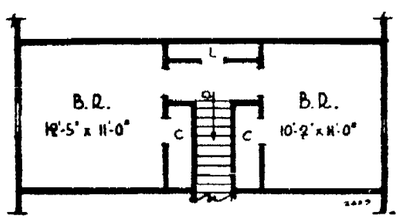

The one-story appearance comes from the absence of dormers in the roof. These are omitted as an economy measure, but may be set in the rear slope of the roof if desired.

The chief features of this house include a large living-room, kitchen and dining-room, and two bedrooms and bath on the first floor, an unusual arrangement of five casement sash across the front of the living-room, and an unusual amount of closet space. The second floor may be left unfinished and even the stairway left for a future time.

A very interesting effect is secured by covering the end walls and gables with clapboard, while the front wall is divided between brick facing around the large window area and stucco to the right of the entrance. Board-and-batten siding is used above the brickwork.

FIRST FLOOR

SECOND FLOOR

Due to the slope of the roof the second-floor bedrooms are confined to an 11-inch width at floor level, but contain very great closet space. The arrangement shown may be altered so that the 10'x11' bedroom will be given over to another bathroom and dressing room, thus providing a very excellent suite. This can be done in a very economical manner as the second-floor bath will be located directly above the first-floor bathroom.

The exterior of the house does not have to follow the suggested finish, but may be shingled or finished with clapboard or flush siding. All-white walls and dark gray roof are probably the best color scheme.

Cleaning of Waxed Floors Made Easier

Waxed floors, whether finished with shellac, varnish, or penetrating wax, are probably the easiest of all to keep in good condition. However, as every homemaker knows, she must wage never-ending warfare against soil the real spots that are tracked in not merely the daily film of dust particles.

There's a family of cleaners generally distributed in housewares departments, grocery and hardware stores, that really make this job much easier. About a half dozen manufacturers are making them, so your chances of finding them without a long hunt are good.

These employ the principal of a solvent, which loosens the soil, which then must be wiped up of course. The solvent also carries enough wax held in emulsion to deposit a thin coat on the floor.

The secret of efficient cleaning is to remove the soil once it is loosened. For this you must have another cloth and wipe the floor usually after an interval of a few minutes. You'll find that most directions tell you to do this if the floor is badly soiled. Your own experience will soon show you that it's most satisfactory method in all cases.

If you have a considerable area of floor to keep shining and polished, you'll like the square mop block, which uses a pad of steel wool—one for applying the cleaner, the other for buffing the floor later on. When you buy this tool, better get at least two extra steel wool pads for they have a habit of wearing out rather quickly.

Most of these cleaners will not give you a high polish. If you like a very glossy finish, apply a coat—or even two—of paste wax for living room and other floors that are not subjected to extreme ly heavy traffic.

Waterproof Ivy-Covered Walls to Curb Moisture

Ivy enhances the beauty of many walls of brick or masonry, but sometimes is objected to on the basis that it holds moisture and keeps the falls damp. A preventative measure for such a condition is the application of a transparent water-proofing compound, or two coats of spar varnish to the walls before the ivy has covered them.

It is possible to apply the same treatment after the ivy is in place, if one does not mind the awkwardness of getting under the ivy and making the application. If ivy is temporarily detached from walls to facilitate painting one garden authority suggests that small strips of leather be tacked across the vines at strategic points when the ivy is returned to place.

Walks After 24 Years, Knees Broken in Crash

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Blanche Andrus 60, of nearby Gillette was crippled by paralysis of both knees for 24 years before she managed to walk again this summer.

She suffered fractures of both knees yesterday when riding in an automobile driven by her husband, Claude. He struck a pole in an attempt to avoid hitting another car near here. Andrus was not injured.

Shaking Paint and Varnish Products Creates Air Bubbles

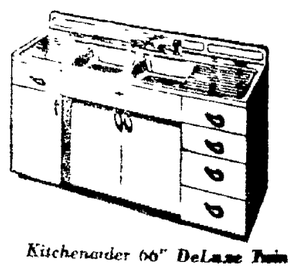

Shaking of paint, varnish and lacquer products, especially varnishes and enamels, is likely to result in minute air bubbles which may cause pin prick blisters on the finished job. Such products should be carefully and thoroughly stirred before use and then "boxed" by pouring two or three times from one container to another. Finally, straining the finish through an old silk stocking or fine cloth will remove any specks or lumps which may have been missed in the stirring, if the user desires maximum assurance of a perfect finish.

This procedure is especially advised when a finish has been previously opened and left standing, with possible development of a skin.

Purchase of the Sublette hospital and property by the Sublette hospital committee, a community group, was consummated early this week as Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Hartman received the check for the property and tendered the deed to Reuben Dinges, treasurer, and Wilson Roemich, secretary, of the committee. Contributions provided the funds for the purchase of the property.

Immediately, men in the community fell to work cleaning up the building and yard, razing two buildings in the rear of the hospital, and preparing to paint the building. Leonard Vaessen, Henry Bansau and Dinges mix paint while others in the group look on. Members of the committee plan to hold "Sublette Hospital Day" Sept. 22 to raise funds needed to reopen the hospital. Enthusiasm for the project has been steadily mounting.

Gilbert Theiss (on ladder) discusses plans for painting the hospital building with Dr. Hartman and Vernon Bonnell, a member of the hospital committee. The group hopes to raise enough money with its Hospital Day to reopen the hospital, since contributions proved enough only for purchase of the property.

Jack Malach, Leo Glaser, Ray Lauer and Paul Clouse wield crow bars as workers work on the foundation of the old nurse's home in the rear of the hospital. A public auction of automobiles, tractors, and other farm and domestic merchandise was provided by manufacturer-dealer cooperation at cost, without affecting local quotas.

Passersby on East River street were treated to an unusual sight early this week when they observed a horse hitched to a parking meter. James Rowley of Milwaukee, Wis., "parked" the horse he was transporting from Colorado to his home while he made minor repairs on his car.

The annual Franklin Grove fall festival, which opened Thursday night and closes tonight, provided plenty of merriment and excitement for young and old alike with its carnival rides, concessions, agricultural and flower shows and contests. Here Bobbie Watson and Judy Long, two Franklin Grove youngsters, enjoy the merry-go-round.

A tour of the Lee county Soil Conservation district, to show the purpose and value of soil conservation methods, was conducted by the district committee for clergymen Thursday. Shown as they started the tour, the group includes: (First row, left to right) Neil Howell, the Rev. John Osborn, East Jordan; Grant McGill, assistant farm adviser; the Rev. Don Smith, Amboy; Frank Nangle, Paw Paw; the Rev. J. W. Walter, Ashton; Milton Vaupel, Ashton; Ray Faivre, Sublette; the Rev. R. P. Donovan, Walton. Second row: the Rev. Hollis Shook, Paw Paw; the Rev. Barent Johnson, Compton; Frank Scholl, Dixon; the Rev. G. A.. Engelter, and the Rev. H. C. Montanus, both of Ashton; H. Baker, I. N. U. company, and the Rev. Robert C. Troy, Amboy. Third row: A. C. Nesmith, Dixon; Rev. Donald Rowe, Dixon; L. J. Miller, Franklin Grove; Bill Briggs, Morrison; Claude Currens, Dixon; Rev. Dennis J. Bennett, Amboy; George King, Amboy; and Ray Lane, Amboy.

It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones.—Luke 17:2.

The object of punishment is prevention from evil; it never can be made impulsive to good.—Horace Mann.

More Serious than Eggs

Henry Wallace has had a lot of eggs thrown at him in the last two weeks. But it's no egg that Louis Budenz has thrown in an article called, "How the Reds Snatched Henry Wallace," in the current Collier's magazine. What Mr. Budenz has thrown looks more like a political haymaker.

The author is the former managing editor of the Communist Daily Worker. He tells his story from his experience as one of the Reds who, he says, hatched the Wallace boom on orders from Moscow.

Something happened during Mr. Wallace's wartime visit to Siberia, he writes, that caused the Kremlin to send urgent directives to its American agents to support the then vice president's political ambitions. The orders were issued at a meeting in June, 1944, which Mr. Budenz says he attended.

The article goes on to say that Communists all over the country —not identified as such, of course —flooded Democratic politicians with demands that Mr. Wallace be renominated for vice president in 1944. They conducted a similar campaign when his appointment as secretary of commerce was up for Senate confirmation.

Mr. Budenz recalls that he was at another Communist meeting in February, 1945, when a top boss named Trachtenberg told the National Board, "We have taken Wallace into custody." And in December, 1946, the Red periodical Political Affairs urged the creation of a third party and, says Mr. Budenz, "singled out Wallace as one who had 'contributed a great deal toward checking the GOP advance."

Mr. Wallace and his board of strategy may denounce the article as an election-year smear. But we don't think it can be ducked or brushed off that easily. It is, we repeat, no egg.

Any detailed answer that Mr. Wallace may make will be largely a matter of his words against his accuser's. But there are external factors that will handicap the third-party candidate in any attempt to explain away the charges.

No one, not even Henry Wallace, denies that he has the active and unanimous support of the American Communist Party. His campaign is being managed for the most part by persons with records of Communist sympathy and left-wing activity. He has never renounced the support of Communists as such, nor has he strayed from the general line of Soviet - Communist international policy.

Against such a background it will scarcely be enough for him to deny that he is playing the Communist game.

There is as little chance that Henry Wallace will be elected president in November as there is that the Communists will seize control of Washington tomorrow. But that is no reason to ignore the charges of Mr. Budenz.

If those charges are not disproved, then we must reflect that except for fate and conservative Democratic politicians, Henry Wallace would have been president for the last three years—a president in the custody of a hostile power's agents.

Many local Americans supported Mr. Wallace's renomination in 1944. A lot of them have changed their minds about him since then. But some of them are still gullible. The accusations of Louis Budenz, a former Communist insider, will give the gullible the rude awakening and the warning that they need—unless Mr. Wallace can show convincingly that those accusations are false.

Courthouse Elevator

There is urgent need for the installation of an elevator in the Lee County court house and the Board of Supervisors could do the public a great service by appropriating funds for such an improvement.

Even a young and active person knows he has been somewhere by the time he climbs the hill to the court house and then ascends the two flights of stairs to the third floor where the circuit court room, sheriff's office and office of the states attorney are located. An older person finds the trip a real test of endurance. Anyone without a strong heart had better not try it.

An elevator in the court house would not be an extravagance but should be regarded as a necessary facility to make this public edifice more accessable to the people who must use it. Many older people and oftime people with infirmaties, are required to visit the court house on business that is vitally necessary to them or to the public interest and practically all such visits require their attendance on the second or third floor. Lee County can afford to give them the convenience of an elevator. The Telegraph is sure the public will approve of such an improvement in the county building.

As Pegler Sees It

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—In this campaign, President Truman and the Messrs. Green, Murray and Tobin and all the predatory bund of union racketeers are appealing to the stupidity and greed of the American worker. These are highly developed faculties of the faceless fellow who, as we are told by the biographer of Harry Hopkins, was deliberately turned aside from the political issues in 1944, and made to think of the fight as a mere bout of repartee between Governor Dewey and Roosevelt's dog. The biographer, Mr. Sherwood, makes no apology to that exalted ignoramus whom the late Roosevelt in sly contempt often took onto his lap to say, "you know and I know—" or "your government has decided—." Roosevelt did play him for a fool and with enormous success. And all the old professionals who have lived like kings on the pence wrung from his pay confidently understand that the way to win his vote is to tickle his greed, flatter his pride with absurd compliments and yowl over his woes as though they were always the inflictions of a hateful personality called "Wall Street."

Mr. Taft, as a man of honor and self-respect, simply could not force himself to gaze upon the faces of the American people and tell them that they were fine and blameless, or even handsome. He made some attempts but the lies gagged him. He never could master the melodious knack that made Roosevelt king. Professional politicians, a salty, sordid cult like the old school of fight managers, said Mr. Taft had political b. o., and they were right. It was apparent from his demeanor that he regarded himself as a person very superior to the common run even as Roosevelt did. But whereas Roosevelt pretended to be a man of the people, a grotesque pose by a snob as full of affection as an actor, Mr. Taft never has pretended. He is distinctly finer in all the admirable ways than the people in the subway or watching the ball-game—more intelligent, diligent and conscientious and with less of their greed for the property and rights of others, and he would not insult the voters' intelligence by pretending to be no better than they.

At campaign time, if ever, the Americans should be told the truth about themselves, for most of the evils done by the government are committed in response to popular demand. Instead, however, the rivals for office lather the citizen with imaginary virtues and arouse his primitive superstitions with ghost stories which would offend the independent intelligence of a laggard child. The proposition that "Wall Street" somehow caused the Truman inflation while it opposed with ruthless greed the inflationary Roosevelt - Truman scale of union wages is typical of these. The proposition that the Taft-Hartley law has injured the worker by imposing restraints on the union goons who kick the faceless man around is another. If the ballot were restricted to persons of a reasonably low minimum of intelligence such nonsense would be self-defeating.

There is no mechanical method of learning at the moment just how well these appeals are going over. But if they do fail, their defeat need not be a sign of an awakening of intelligence. Many of the voters are just bored and want a new set of sycophants to flatter and fool them. Moreover, the Republicans are offering equally toothsome stuff of the same kind. We may trust them absolutely to say nothing about the inflationary power of a basic wage of $27 a day for brick layers who are forbidden by their union's contract with the builders to exceed one-third of a reasonable normal rate of production. Actually, bricklayers are producing at less than one-sixth of their capacity per dollar of pay when portal-to-portal and wash-up time are counted and compulsory overtime and arbitrary bonuses are added. But where is the candidate who would appear before a congress of bricklayers and say, "By your greed and laziness you bums have made it necessary for the displaced people of America to pay $6 for a dollar's worth of home construction and yet you have the gall to squawk about the cost of beef and butter I am against all racketeers, and if I am elected, I will do my best to make it impossible for you greedy parasites to prey on the necessity and anguish of the community. If you strike, I will smash your picket-lines so decent men can do honest work?"

Robert Moses, of New York, the most competent public servant in the United States and the most straightforward, is the only one who is capable of uttering such honest criticism.

But perish the thought that Mr. Moses hates the people. He is onto them, that is all, and, unlike others who are onto them, he will not lie to them about non-existent virtues for the privilege of working himself to death for them. He has a decent contempt for the honor, self-respect and self-restraint of the people.

The appetite for sympathy and flattery is a dangerous weakness of popular government. Roosevelt and Huey Long fattened the people on such hog-food until they had scarcely more manhood than swine. The Germans, under the spell of Hitler, fell to brooding, then moaning over the terrible persecutions put upon them, completely forgetting their own iniquities.

A campaign waged on distortions and evasions must come to a misshapen conclusion. Dewey will be elected (Russia willing) and will come under heavy punishment right away for failing to tackle evils which are due only to the selfishness and stupidity of the people themselves. Naturally, he will try to cure these troubles by scolding the Democratic party. He will be thinking of 1952 when he will have to go back to the people like some bum mooching five dollars for a cup of java, asking for re-election.

Lee County's Health Department

CEREBRAL PALSY

Cerebral palsy or spastic paralysis is a condition which affects some children at birth. It is not a common disease nor is it so rare that most of us do not know about one or more patients. Almost all of these children are born with the condition. Sometimes it is thought that a difficult labor in which baby suffers a hemorrhage or brain damage from lack of oxygen is the cause. Infection or metabolic diseases in the mother may be to blame in other cases. Occasionally the condition may be inherited. A few cases are thought to occur after birth due to injuries or infections such as encephalitis and meningitis. It is known that cerebral palsy is more common in first born children than in the children that follow them. White children are more often affected than Negroes. The condition occurs in all types of families regardless of occupation, residence, social or economic status.

In all cases there is some injury to theb brain and this results in quite a variety of symptoms, including muscular incoordination, personality defects, and changes in intelligence. These children are awkward in various degrees. Some have considerable difficulty in walking, talking and writing. Although many of them have normal or superior intelligence their physical handicaps are so pronounced that they are often considered imbeciles or idiots—and treated accordingly, which is most unfair to them.

It is quite true that a certain proportion of them are mentally defective, but many of them are definitel educable, and should have the benefit of schooling the same as other children.

It is only recently that public efforts have been made to give these children the medical care and education which they need. Medical treatment will often result in considerable improvement. Provisions for their education will result in very obvious benefits. Due to the neglect which these children have suffered there are only a few places in the entire country where efforts to treat and teach them are being made. Illinois is one of the states which now has such a program for cerebral palsied children. Over the years, the provisions now being made to these handicapped children will prove adequate for their physical and social improvement under expert care.

Although it has never been officially designated, the Road Runner, commonly called the Chaparral Bird, is generally regarded as the State Bird of New Mexico.

THE STORY: Hilary Shenstone, British secret agent, lies wounded in the Indian desert beside a crashed plane, after completing a dangerous mission. He thinks of Nuns Farthing, his home in the English countryside, and feels a desperate need to get back there. He doesn't know that the house has been let and that dreamy, 17-year-old Sabrina, whom he has never met, has adopted his old room and eagerly awaits his return. "Things have begun to slip, Bill . . ." he tells the pilot with him, as they await rescue. . . . Hilary returns to London in what seems a dream, decides to enjoy himself even so and heads for his club. There he finds two old family friends: Calthorpe, and elderly Lord Totleigh, father of Hilary's fiancee, Alice. They seem unaware of him. Denby, from the Home Office, enters and explodes a bomb-shell. He says that Hilary Shenstone is dead of a gunshot wound in India.

HE stood there in the warm, familiar surroundings of his club in Pall Mall and knew that he was dead.

Dead. He realized it with a terror he had never known on earth, a helpless, unreasoning panic which fluttered and struggled and strained like the wings of a frantic bird. The commissionaire in the hall—the men who went through the door just ahead of him—Denby crossing the marble floor towards the lounge—none of them had known he was there. They couldn't see him. They couldn't hear him. He was cut off from them forever — disembodied — invisible—exiled. Dead.

No. No, this could not really be. It was some form of delusion still—fever—nightmare—delirium. . . . He would prove to himself now, at once, that this thing simply hadn't happened. He would speak to Denby—and then they would turn to him with incredulous looks, seize his hands, order drinks all around.

"What about Dalton?" he demanded, approaching the group around the hearth. "Did they get Dalton back safe?"

"Dalton's report is coming by air mail," said Denby. "He's had a bad time. No water where they crashed. But he'll pull through."

There, you see? It worked. Denby had heard him and answered his question. But no one was looking at him. Must try again. Must prove . . .

"Did Dalton write my family too?" he asked, and laid his hand on Denby's shoulder.

HE knew then. He had the answer. Denby was shaken by a long shiver, and put a hand to his head.

"Drat," said Denby apologetically. "I—I need a drink."

"Have my brandy, old boy." Calthorpe thrust a full glass into Denby's hand and rang the bell. "Steady, now—let's sit down. We all need a stiff one, I'm thinking."

That's funny, thought Hilary. No drink for me.

Looking from one to another of their grave, lined faces, he suddenly abandoned all hope for himself. Too many times he had made one in a stricken circle like this. Too many drinks had been ordered by himself in similar circumstances for him to ignore the signs.

"I say, Totleigh—" Denby raised his head from the glass. "Bit of a blow for your girl, too—Alice, I mean—I mean, weren't they—"

"Presumably they were," said Totleigh moodily, his tall thin figure drooping against the mantelpiece. "One never knows these days what one's young people are really about, does one? She's been seeing quite a lot of his brother lately. It will be hard on her, of course, in any case, but—I don't know—"

Hilary was staring at him. George and Alice? For a moment there was no reaction, and he wondered if he had conveniently left his emotions somewhere along the way. Of course Alice had always hated his job—even tried to make him promise to give it up and stay in England. It was because he had half expected this to be his last undertaking before handing in his resignation that he had been so prompt and willing on the day that the Home Office had rung through to Nuns Farthing. So George was cutting in, was he. One must look into this.

"I'M thinking Alice won't miss him as much as we do, at that," said Totleigh, and glanced round at them piteously from the hearthrug. "I always thought of him almost as a son. I've never felt that way about George, somehow— Three double brandies," he added, as a club servant appeared in answer to the bell.

But this is awful, thought Hilary. They'll have me crying over them in a minute. It's not as bad as all that, chaps, really it isn't, he wanted to say. . . .

"If it's any satisfaction to us," Denby was saying to the rest of them, "he had finished the job before they got him. The mullah is caught red-handed. If that's any comfort," he muttered, contemplating the amber liquid in his glass. "And I suppose it ought to be."

"It ought to be to Hilary," said Calthorpe grimly.

And it was, but Hilary had had enough of this. He couldn't go on standing there and watch them break their hearts over him. He must take himself off till they came round a bit. The brandies would fix them up. . . . He turned away aimlessly, and sidestepped the man returning with a tray on which sat three tall glasses and a siphon.

No drink for Hilary, he thought. And I ought to need it worse than they do.

He drifted out into the entrance hall and collected his hat from the peg. The commissionaire was writing nearsightedly in the message book and did not look up.

Well, what next? What was the good of it, like this? How did one pass one's time. Time? There was no such thing as time, any more, for him. . . .

Polo Church Is Scene of Smith-Fluegel Wedding

The Evangelical United Brethren Church of Polo was the scene of an impressive candlelight wedding Saturday evening, Sept. 4, uniting in marriage Miss Evelyn Smith, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Folk of Polo, and Donald Fluegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Fluegel of Dakota, with Rev. Ervin Schmidt officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with yellow gladioli in large baskets, candelabra, and fern and the pews were individually marked with yellow glads and large white satin bows.

Preceding the ceremony, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ross Folk, played appropriate wedding music. Miss Dolores Wilson sang "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Folk wore a gown of blue satin and lace and Miss Wilson was also dressed in blue satin. Each had a corsage of pink pompon mums.

The bride entered the church with her grandfather, and was wearing a lovely gown of white slipper satin fashioned with an off the shoulder affect with leg o' mutton sleeves and a long train. She wore the wedding veil of her aunt, Mrs. Harvey Dykema, for something borrowed. Seed pearls ornamented her head dress which fell into a fingertip veil trimmed with lace. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. She carried a large Colonial bouquet of red and white carnations and white streamers.

Mrs. Harvey Dykema, matron of honor, wore a dusty rose gown of taffeta, with a bustle back and matching mitts. Miss Ethel Shadewaldt, the bridesmaid, wore an identical gown in powder blue. They were designed with an off the shoulder affect similar to the bride's. Each carried a Colonial bouquet of glads and mums.

The flower girl, Gloria Jean Schreiner, cousin of the bride, carried a white basketfull of red rose petals. She was dressed in a floor-length gown of blue satin and a veil. Her brother Jimmie served as ring bearer. He wore short black velvet pants and a white satin blouse. He carried a white heart-shaped pillow with both rings on it. He wore a red carnation bouttonniere.

Delbert Fehr of Dakota served his cousin as best man and Harold Bordner of Dakota acted as groomsman. Ushers were the groom's mother, Fred Fluegel, the bride's brother, Donald Smith, and her uncles, Harry and William Folk.

Mrs. Frank Folk wore a grey crepe dress and Mrs. Fluegel wore a brown suit. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

The reception followed immediately in the church basement. Yellow and white, the bride's favorite colors, were used in decorating the basement. Mrs. Wayne Brantner served the cake and Mrs. Harry Folk poured. Those helping in the kitchen were Mrs. Harry Wuebben, Mrs. Kenneth Miller, Mrs. Robert Folk, Mrs. Melyin Folk and Marilyn Jansen of Pekin. Frances Ann Folk and Betty Johann were in charge of the guest book.

The couple left on a trip to Yellowstone Park and other places in the west. The bride was wearing a brown suit with Kelly green accessories and the corsage from the center of her bridal bouquet.

The groom was graduated from Dakota high school and is now engaged in farming. The new Mrs. Fluegel was graduated from Polo Community high school and was employed at Kable News, Mt. Morris.

HOLLYWOOD

BY JACK QUIGG

Hollywood—(AP)—It's fashionable in Hollywood these days to admit you're a ham, but Humphrey Bogart even thinks honesty can be carried too far.

"For my dough false modesty is just as distasteful as pride", he observed during a reflective moment in his dressing room. "Truth is, it's a type of bragging, and I'm getting sick of it".

Bogie's doubling as star and producer for the first time (for "Knock On My Door") and maybe his extra duties induced a petulant mood. Anyway, he said nearly every actor he knows is running around confessing how theatrical he is.

"Sure theyre hams. Why shouldn't an actor be a ham? It's part and parcel of his business. But hammiest of all is the ham Nope, you don't catch Bogart doing THAT.

Indian trouble slowed down shooting at the "Canadian Pacific" company's Alberta location. They photographed too pale and had forgotten their tribal markings. Suntan makeup and some fast research enabled the show to go on.

Filmites who sweated out the summer monhts in Hollywood are on or planning delayed vacations. Hedy Lamarr and her youngsters are loafing at Lake Tahoe. Raymond Massey leaves shortly for relaxation at Sun Valley. The Robert Prestons are being rugged with a pack trip into the high Sierras. Richard Widmark plans to rest up with his family in New York. "I've been here a year now and I get tired of seeing movies", he says.

TAX FACTS

Under a new lagal wrinkle that has recently cropped up, schools are again asking taxpayers to vote a parmenant blank check. A blank check has alreeady been voted in Sycamore under this new wrinkle, the Alton schools are asking the taxpayers for a blank check at an election Sept. 18, and it may happen to you. Here is the story.

Under House Bill 513 the maximum tax rate as figured by the county clerk for the educational fund of the Alton School District is $.5222 on each $100 of valuation: for its building fund the maximum rate was figured at $.0822.

The Alton schools say these rate limits are too low. Before the 100 per cent assessment laws the Alton school tax for educational purposes jumped from: $318 149 89 for 1944 to $490 278.85 for 1945 after the people had voted increased taxing power in 1945. For 1947, under the limits of H. B. 513, the Alton school educational tax was $541 001 31. But this still isn't enough, the Alton schools say.

They say they actually need an educational fund rate of $.90. This would give them on the basis of the last known valuation $932 - 385.25—almost three times as much tax money as for 1944, almost twice as much as for 1945 and $390 000 more than for 1945 and $390,000 more than for 1946 and 1947. They say they need a building fund of $.30 which would produce $310 795 08 compared to $89,463.83 for 1944 $128 826 57 for 1945, $186 675 for 1946 and $85,-157.85 for 1947.

But they re not asking the people of Alton to vote the $.90 limit for the educational fund and $.30 for the building fund that they "need". They re asking for $1.26 for the educational fund, which would produce $1,305,339 35—and $.44 for the building fund, which would produce $455,832 79.

The Alton schools say they have to ask for these higher limits because of this new legal wrinkle; that, if it were not for H B 513, their present limits would be $1.25 for the educational purposes, to $.44 for building purposes—a permanent blank check.

Representatives of the Illinois Association or Schoool Boards, of which the Alton school board is probably a member, have stated that they don't read the law this way. The Taxpayers' Federation staff experts don't. And the leading tax attorneys in Illinois who have been consulted by the Taxpayers' Federation disagree completely with the Madison County Superintendent. It is their unanimous opinion that the referendum provisions of House Bill 513 govern, and that the tax rate limit under House Bill 513 can be raised or lowered by vote of the people on the basis of needs.

But, if the schools still are afraid of tax objections despite these legal opinions, they can nevertheless safely ask for only what they need without asking the taxpayers to write a blank check. By investing a few cents in postage and letters to the large taxpayers, they can get written commitments that tax objections will not be filed to an election asking for taxing power based on needs rather than on this new legal wrinkle. The Taxpayers' Federation got such written commitments within a week from the largest taxpayers in Sycamore.

Such written commitments would protect the Alton schools against the remote possibility of tax objections based on this new wrinkle. The Alton school board could then ask the people to vote taxing power based on needs instead of a permanent blank check.

School boards and school officials in addition to their present responsibility to the children, also have a responsibility to the taxpayers. Failure to fulfill that responsibility to the taxpayers will also jeopardize the future of the school children.

be thrown or Communism will collapse in failure before the fortified fact of reformed capitalism.

But will that fist be thrown in Stalin's lifetime? I doubt it. He has missed his grand opportunity—if opportunity it was.

Stalin is now 68 years old. If he shared the eager egotism of Adolf Hitler, who set out to win the world at 38 and died without an acre and 66, he would have turned loose his tremendous hordes against western civilization some time between May, 1945 and now.

The fact he hasn't done so yet is the best guarantee he won't try it while he is at the helm of the Russian state. Those who disagree with him—those who had a more aggressive attitude toward the west—have died comparatively young from mysterious ailments, like an ax through the skull, that afflict those who don't interpret him properly.

Napoleon set out to win the world in his own lifetime. So did Hitler. Stalin has never suffered from these Gallic and Teutonic compulsions of self-admiration.

He is committed by his political beliefs to the same goal. That is the aim of classical Communism. But he has an Oriental turn of mind and time isn't so important to him. Perhaps he believes—like the average American working man—that time is only that stuff between paydays.

Obviously, Stalin so far doesn't believe he has reached the main pay day. Like any Oriental commander he is more interested in keeping face than losing it in a doubtful gamble.

The record shows Russia—not America or England—took the brunt of casualties in defeating nazi Germany. Despite his almost endless manpower Stalin was hurt badly—and perhaps he is aware the Russian peasant is a great soldier on his own soil, but not so great in a purely offensive war abroad.

Russia must be having tremendous post-war troubles at home. It is also a tremendous land that needs a half century of internal development to reach its own power peak.

For all the current rhetoric it is causing, I believe they are no more than diversionary activities designed deliberately to keep its one-time friends and present potential enemies off balance.

I don't think Stalin wants war now any more than we do. Why should he risk his reputation as the father of modern Russia? But 68-year-old men don't live forever, and no one knows whether his successor will share his caution. That is why the western world has to keep ready.

gressional investigation of high prices last year, told a GOP meeting at Sterling, Mass., that the Truman program is "little short of fakery."

While Truman was taking a weekend rest on the Potomac aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg, he received some disturbing news yesterday from the Louisiana state Democratic committee, which scratched his name off the November ballot. They voted to list the States Rights candidates in his place.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the Dixie group's presidential candidate, predicted in San Angelo, Tex., that other states will soon follow Louisiana's lead in designating him and Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi as "nominees of the real Democrats."

Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national party chairman, had no comment pending further study of the legal aspects of the Baton Rouge verdict. The national committee may take court action against the States Righters, who already have Alabama Mississippi, South Carolina and several others on their electoral vote claim list.

The States Righters had to scratch Indiana off their vote plans, however, when they lost a court ruling there.

Henry Wallace's Progressive party also ran into ballot difficulties in the south. The Arkansas secretary of state, C. G. Hall, said the third party cannot get on the state ticket unless it swears it is not connected with Communists.

The Wallace forces promised new trouble for Truman in his Missouri home grounds.

A ruling of that state's attorney general putting the Wallacite Progressives on the ballot spurred new Republican hopes of carrying Missouri.

There is strong speculation that Dewey will make a Missouri visit a "must", either on his opening tour or later in the campaign.

These are the major western stops Dewey will make following the Des Moines address: September 21, Denver, September 22, Albuquerque; September 23 Phoenix; September 24 Los Angeles; September 25, San Francisco.

On September 27 Dewey will make three talks, a noon address at the Oregon Republican state convention at Portland an afternoon speech at Tacoma, Wash., and a windup address at Seattle.

Four Months Left To Write Leases Increasing Rents

Four months remain for the negotiating of voluntary leases to raise rents up to 15 per cent under the Housing and Rent act of 1948, Phillip O. Driscoll area rent director reminded landlords and tenats today.

Such leases were first made possible between July 1 and Dec. 31, by the 1947 rent law. The 1948 rent law renewed the lease plan, with the lease-writing period set from April 1 to Dec. 31, 1948.

He explained that 1948 leases must extend at least to Dec. 31, 1949, but pointed out that the last date for writing such leases is exactly one year earlier—Dec. 31, 1948.

Extends Ceiling Rent

Leases negotiated under the 1947 law were required to run at least through Dec. 31, 1948, but the 1948 law extended the rent specified in these leases as the ceiling rent through March 31, 1949, the day of expiration of the rent law.

Driscoll emphasized that all lease terminations must be reported to the rent office.

Also, he said that if a tenant later agrees, for a special reason, to pay a rent higher than that specified in the lease, the lease is inoperative under the federal law and the premises reverts to control under the law. Premises under rent-increase leases are no longer under the rent law, the terms of the lease governing exclusively.

May Petition Boost

"The rent-increase lease way of going about getting a higher rental return should not be confused with the opportunity landlords have of getting rent raises by petition on any one of 13 grounds," said the rent official.

Fulton upset Lanark, 1947 Blackhawk conference titlist, 13-7, at Fulton.

At Rock Falls, Normal Community throttled Coach Bruce McDonald's Rockets, 26-0, in a convincing demonstration of how central Illinois football is played.

Geneseo's Maple Leafs, figured to be one of the NCIC Southwest division contenders, yielded three touchdowns and were dumped at Monmouth, 18-0.

The traditional Sycamore-DeKalb tiff was captured by the Barbs, 19-7. Bill Burtzos scored two TD's and George Myers added another. Myers also tallied twice on long runs of 57 and 45 yards, only to have the plays cancelled by penalties.

Hall Township spanked University high (Normal) 26-0, running up a surprisingly large score against the central state school.

Down at Walnut, the Princeton Tigers launched 1948 operations by whitewashing the Blue Raiders, 19-0. Annawan won a six-man game from Tampico, 25-0, as part of the Tampico homecoming celebration.

Joliet and East Rockford flashed heralded power in impressive victories.

Joliet's seasoned Steelmen whipped a good Centralia eleven 13-0 in a standout intersectional clash. The Steelmen jolted their southern rival by the same score in last year's opener. It was Centralia's only 1947 loss.

East Rockford, billed with Joliet as likely successor to LaSalle-Peru's defending Big Eight champions, turned back East Moline of the Northwest conference 20-0.

In the 43rd meeting between LaSalle-Peru's Cavaliers and Ottawa's North Central entry, the Cavaliers showed effects of losing a year ago's star performers. Ottawa won 18-6 for its first triumph over LaSalle in 14 years.

Down south, Murphysboro racked up its 17th straight victory over three seasons by edging Harrisburg, 13-12. Murphysboro started its string after a 6-6 deadlock with Harrisburg in its 1946 getaway.

In the same area, Flora and Carmi got off to successful starts by uncorking plenty of touchdown punch. Flora swamped usually strong Mt. Vernon 33-12 and Carmi took Salem's measure 26-12.

Streator and Pekin, both powerful contenders in the Big 12 circuit race last season, absorbed surprising 25-0 lickings.

Kankakee's South Suburban outfit licked Streator, and Pekin's Chinks bowed to Mooseheart in a contest dedicating the Chinks' new $100,000 stadium.

Mattoon, Danville and Springfield of the Big 12 fared better against non league foes. Mattoon defeated Belleville 21-0 in an intersectional setto. Danville turned back Oakwood 28-19 and Springfield topped Hillsboro 20-19.

In one of the few games opening conference title races, Moline lived up to its preseason buildup as a Northwest loop flag threat with a 39-12 thumping of Galesburg.

OSWALDO MOORE is one of the Mexican motorcycle experts who'll appear at the ariport in an exhibition of trick riding Monday night. Moore will be accompanied here by approximately 20 companions from Torreon, Mexico.

OWENS' DEBUT SUCCESS

Lahey Scores Twice, Gabriel Santos Once

Victory — sweet victory — belonged to a Dixon high school football team today for the first time in almost two years.

Last night the Dukes, playing their initial game under the tutelage of Coach Sam Owens, whacked Lyons Township at Clinton, Ia., 18-0, to snap a 15-game losing streak that had extended since Sept. 13, 1946.

SUMMARY

Touchdowns—Santos, Lahey 2.

Substitutions—Dixon: Acker, Santos, Cossman, Sproul, Wolf, Richards, Wakeley, Beker, Rock, Phelps, Hoyle, Fleischer, Brink, Helms, Elliott, Mossman. Lyons: D. Parker, Jacobsen, Hannafan, Foland, Hall, Spielman.

Halfback Dave Lahey hit paydirt for touchdowns in the third and fourth periods after Halfback Gabe Santos slashed across the goal line for the game's leadoff score in the second stanza. Lyons was well bottled up by Dixon's defense and failed to threaten.

Flashing a solid, single-wing attack, the Purple and White benefitted from a steady ground-gaining game. A net total of 200 yards was gained on the turf to Lyons' 69. The Iowans picked up 69 yards in the air, however, by completing five of 17 aerials. Dixon's sky pitches netted 47 yards and one TD on three completions in 11 tries.

Stan Fish, Dave Lahey and Santos were the backfield standouts, alternating gains. The line did a fine job but it was difficult to single out any particular player for commendation. Incidentally, Lorenzo Contreras, the winger who specializes on defense, started and contributed his bit toward the win cause, despite an ankle injury.

A scoreless first quarter was notable chiefly for a Dixon scoring bid that fizzled on the one-yard line. Dick Kelley recovered a wild Lyons lateral on the Wildcat 36, setting up the unsuccessful drive. Santos was stopped a yard shy of the end zone on fourth down after starting from the five.

STATISTICS

First downs—Lyons 8, Dixon 12.
Yards gained rushing—Lyons 81, Dixon 206.
Yards lost rushing—Lyons 12, Dixon 6.
Yards gained passing—Lyons 69, Dixon 47.
Yards lost by penalties—Lyons 5, Dixon 55.
Net yards gained—Lyons 133, Dixon 192.
Passes attempted—Lyons 17, Dixon 11.
Passes completed—Lyons 5, Dixon 3.
Passes intercepted—Lyons 1, Dixon 3.
Penalties—Lyons 1 for 5 yards, Dixon 5 for 55 yards.

Lyons wound up the first 12 minutes on Dixon's 21. They penetrated to the 15 and then were stopped.

Taking over at this point, the Dukes proceeded to storm 85 yards for touchdown No. 1. The march covered 11 plays and featured long gallops by Santos, Fish and Lahey. Santos popped through a big hole near left tackle to cover the final eight yards and rack up six points. Lahey's placement try for the extra point veered off sharply to the left and was not good.

Quarterback Frank Nagy's pass interception paved the way for the third period tally. Nagy carried the ball to Lyons' 20 after stealing it out of the air. Then Santos and Jerry Wakeley collaborated to move down to the five. Lahey took it over on a dash around left end. The red head's place kick was blocked, the score remaining 12-0.

Less than a minute showed on the scoreboard clock when Lahey gathered in Fish's pass for a 27-yard payoff play, running the count to 18-0. Only a moment before he snatched the toss, Lahey had traveled 60 yards for an apparent touchdown with an intercepted pass. It was nullified by an out-of-bounds ruling placing the ball on Lyons' 27.

The extra point attempt was botched up, Lyons smothering a plunge when a placement missed fire.

Bobtales

By BOB FALLSTROM

It seemed as if half Dixon was present at Coan field, Clinton, Ia., last night to watch the Dukes shake off the losing habit with an 18-0 conquest of Lyons' Wildcats.

Of course it might have been nicer to bury the defeat string at home but DHS partisans didn't mind the locale. The important thing was the win itself.

Not since Sept. 13, 1946, when DePue was crushed, 39-12, had Dixon won a football game. Victory was almost a forgotten word.

Now the pall at long last has lifted. The storm clouds are clearing and the horizon is bright.

It is true that Lyons failed to offer sterling opposition. Coach John Crimmings just didn't have the manpower after losing most of last season's regulars by graduation.

Downfield blocking, a forgotten chore, has been revived. The T-formation, which never did click, is out in favor of the single wing . . . which seems more suited to the talents of Stan Fish, Gabe Santos, Dave Lahey and Floyd Acker. And the line has been bolstered remarkably so that it no longer resembles a worn out sieve.

Aagainst sterner opposition? Well, we'll have to wait for it to come along. But here's one thing certain: Dixon is no longer a "patsy". Anybody that licks Sam Owens' boys will have to do the job the hard way.

With a victory under their belts, the Duke players could become exceedingly tough. The markings of a fine ball club are there.

PRESS BOX SCRIBBLES — Emphasizing their alertness, the Dukes recovered four of five Lyons fumbles . . . Dave Lahey punted well and also got a lot of distance on his kickoffs . . . Lyons' Don Schneider was overworked. The 160-pound senior halfback lugged the leather incessantly, being spelled by Dick Thoms only occasionally . . . Dave Stambaugh, Lyons' end, made several nice pass catches . . . The weather was just a shade on the nippy side but not chilly enough for topcoats . . . Dixon's three-touchdown performance eclipsed the 1947 scoring total of 13 points through seven starts . . .

An unusual exhibition of trick motorcycle riding by a group of Mexican experts is slated at the airport Monday night.

Sponsored by the Kewanee Motorcycle club and George Reynolds the exhibition will include everything that can be done and several things that shouldn't be done on a motorcycle.

About 20 male riders from the Motorized Corps "Pentathlon" club of Torreon, Coah., Mexico, will put on the show under the arc lights at the ball diamond, starting at 8 o'clock.

The cyclists planned to attend the national tourist trophy motorcycle races at Peoria tomorrow and will appear at Indiana Harbor, Ind., Tuesday. However, they usually do not put on shows, except in special cases.

DiMag Home Run Wins for Yanks, 11-6

(By the Associated Press)

The New York Yankees have declared themselves back in the American league pennant race.

Jo DiMaggio rekindled the pennant hopes of the defending world champions in Boston yesterday with a tremendous grand-slam home run that brought the Yanks an 11-6, ten-inning victory over the league-leading Red Sox.

The defeat cut the Six' lead to two and one-half games over the Yanks.

The Indians remained a game behind the Yanks by blitzing the Detroit Tigers, 10-1. Lefty Gene Bearden limited the visiting Tigers to six hits in posting his 14th victory. Bearden also singled, doubled and drove in two runs as the Tribe whacked three Tiger pitchers for 14 hits. Joe Gordon chipped in with his 25th homer to help the rookie along.

Connie Mack's fourth place Athletics took a twilight-night doubleheader from the Senators in Washington, 9-6 and 3-0. The A's hammered Sid Hudson for 17 hits in the opener and won out with a four-run ninth inning rally. Phil Marchildon stopped the Nats on three hits in the second game that was called at the end of eight innings to permit Philadelphia to catch a train for Boston. The defeats extended Washington's losing streak to 10 games.

The St. Louis Brown walked to a 10-7 victory over the White Sox in a night game at Chicago. White Sox pitchers walked 15 Brownies with Rookie Marvin Rotblatt passing 10.

In the only National league game, the fourth place St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5. Stan Musial broke up the game by singling home Red Schoendienst in the ninth inning.

Musial's safety was his second of the game and his 200th of the season. The Cards hammered Ken Raffensberger and Harry Gumbert for 15 hits including a two-run homer by Nippy Jones. Howie Pollet went the distance for St. Louis and won his 11th game.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 11 (AP)—Artie Towne, New York, outpointed Eddie O'Neil, Milwaukee, welterweights (10), Wednesday night. It previously had been reported erroneously that O'Neill defeated Towne.

Northwestern Looms As Big 9 Darkhorse

Chicago — (NEA) — How are things in the Big Nine, which year in and year out is perhaps the fastest college football circuit in the land?

Well, Michigan, Purdue and Minnesota rate as top favorites, with Northwestern the darkhorse, and Wisconsin rating a title chance because of a schedule break. Illinois, Iowa, Ohio State and Indiana appear destined to fill out the lower division.

Michigan, which had two good teams last year, has lost one of them, but still should be strong with the one it has left plus some fine sophomores.

Purdue lost only one man from its fine 1947 team. Stu Holcomb's club will be a distinct threat, but the Boilermakers face a backbreaking schedule which may hurt their chances. They give Notre Dame its one big test right under the gun—in South Bend, Sept. 25. They still have Bob DeMoss' passing to lead the way, and Harry Szulborski's rushing for variety.

Minnesota has a corking, terrifically big line, but has not improved its backfield speed much. The latter was the Gophers' greatest handicap last year.

Northwestern should have one of the best backfields in the nation with boys like Don Burson, Frank Aschenbrenner and Art Murakowski. The Wildcats were coming fast at the close of last season, and with breaks could come through.

Illinois rates just so-so because it is short on experience at several key positions. Gone from last fall are such lads as passing Perry Moss, Art Dufelmeier and Chick Maggioli in the backfield, Jocko Wreen, Ike Owens, Lou Agase, Bob Cunz, huge Les Bingaman and Joe Buscemi in the line. Sophomores will have to furnish much of the reserve strength. One, Dick Mueller, may start at right tackle. Coach Ray Eliot really has to go to work this trip.

This leaves Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio State and Indiana but not necessarily in that order.

The veteran Harry Stuhldreher pulled his Badgers into surprising second place last year, doesn't have to play top contenders Michigan and Purdue, and could come through with a fine crop of sophomores. All-Conference Center Red Wilson will be the mainstay of a strong line but the loss of regular backs like Jack Wink, Jug Girard and Earl Maves may hurt.

Indiana has little for new head coach Clyde Smith.

Wes Fesler in his second year with Ohio State has only fullback Joe Whisler and Quarterback Pete Perini, a couple of question marks, to operate his changed-over single-wing. The former Buckeye great abandoned a winged-T attack that dropped him into the cellar last year.

Doctor Eddie Anderson can pull off some surprises at Iowa with T-passer Al DiMarco, league's third best flipper last year, tossing to proven offensive flankers like Bob McKenzie and Jack Dittmer, now filling in for the departed Shoener twins.

That's the entire set-up and with 1946 champion Illinois, and last year's Michigan 11, both out of the running for Rose Bowl bids due to the two-year clause against repeaters, the incentive is there for a banner season. And what season isn't big in the Big Nine?

Democracy Defense Against Communism Hit by French Strife

War-time Collaboration of Major Parties is Lost in Peace

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

France's perpetual-motion political crisis is rapidly developing into a dangerously weak spot in the defenses of western Europe against Communist aggression.

Because of its strategic position and its potential strength (a strength now greatly depleted by political and economic ravages) France is the main buttress of the continental democracies. Yet she is so badly crippled by her continual government upheavals that her weakness is a vast encouragement to the Russians to push their offensive.

There is no doubt, for example, that the French situation is in no small degree responsible for the brazen effrontery being displayed by the Reds towards the western allies in Berlin. Washington declares the United States won't allow itself to be pushed out of the German capital—and Wes Gallagher, AP chief of bureau in the strife-torn metropolis, reported yesterday:

"Soviet planes prowled the skies of northern Europe today and Soviet ships cruised in the Baltic off Denmark in the greatest show of Russian strength since the end of the war. There is little doubt in military minds here that the Soviet activity was a carefully planned military show designed to impress Europe with Soviet armed might in view of the east-west crisis in Berlin."

One speaks with vast sympathy for an ally who has suffered so greatly and so gallantly as France. The French are a great people, always ready to defend their honor and security with their lives, as those of us who have been with them on the battlefield can testify.

Yet La Belle France now seems to be suffering from a delusion which also affects the whole Democratic world. Great nations which work together in perfect unity under gunfire have now slackened in both their internal and international unity, on the basis that 'the war is over."

Well, the tragic fact is that the war isn't over. Russia knows it isn't over, because she is the one who is waging it. She is making what we suphemistically call 'cold war." That is, she achieves enough successes in that "cold war," that is no telling what turn her final aggression may take.

All of which is by way of leading up to the thesis that now is the time not only for international cooperation among the democracies, but for greater unity within the individual nations.

In time of "shooting wars" national political differences are submerged in the interest of the state. One would think that the same procedure would be followed in the present "cold war" which represents one of the gravest dangers democracy has faced. It is doubly dangerous because of its insidious nature.

Of course one wouldn't be presumptuous enough to offer political advice to France. It may be permitted however, to note what seems obvious, namely, that sufficient 'wartime" collaboration must be established among the numerous French political parties to combat the fearful danger of Communism. The complexion of the parties shows that a great majority of the people are anti-Bolshevist.

That powerful opposition must be allowed to register itself by some sort of "wartime" coalition, to be worked out through the present legislature or in another general election.

Philosopher Boyle Discusses Methods of Inheriting Cash

Many Would Rather Be Shifty Than Thrifty, Writer Finds

By HAL BOYLE

New York -(AP)—It isn't true that everybody wants to make money.

Everyone knows how to make money work hard, save half of what you earn and buy stocks whose profits multiply like rabbits. The fact that more people don't make money is proof that they are allergic to the first ingredient in the formula—hard work.

Others don't find the second ingredient palatable. They'd rather be shifty than thrifty.

But one thing everyone likes to do is to inherit money. If you can't find money—and every year there seems to be less and less of it left laying around loose—the next best thing to do is to inherit it. This is one of mankind's oldest daydreams.

But no one seems ever to have devised a simple way of making these dreams come true. This is odd. We have a formula to explain the complicated workings of the universe, but no Einstein of finance has bothered to sit down and develop a foolproof formula for a simple thing like inheriting money.

The obvious method would seem to be to get yourself born into a wealthy family, and early in life begin urging upon your parents the advantages of birth control. This would help cut down the number of brothers and sisters with whom you might have to share your inheritance.

The trouble with this system is that wealthy parents have an ungrateful way of losing their money, and die with barely enough to pay for a coach ride to the cemetery. Or else they come of hardy stock and hang on so long that by the time they take off for paradise there you are with grown children of your own—waiting to inherit something from you.

One popular way to inherit money is to be kind and courteous to old widow ladies with a bank account that reads like the national debt.

I tried this myself when I was 11 years old and delivered newspapers. It seemed to me that practically every edition carried stories of dear old ladies expiring and leaving huge gobs of money to little newsboys who had been polite to them.

One of the customers on my paper route was a nice, white-haired old woman who lived all alone in a big white house. Somehow I got the romantic idea she was one of the dear old ladies I had read about, and would save me the trouble of working my way through school.

I never hurled her paper from the sidewalk. I walked up to the porch and handed it to her—and smiled and smiled, and asked about the chilblains she said were always bothering her. At that age I thought her chilblains were relatives or maybe the name of some neighbors she didn't like.

No boy was ever more polite to an old lady. I even petted her small Spitz dog, a dirty-white, nasty-tempered beast that bit me in the ankle at least once a week. But it all came to nothing. I was standing there one day, smiling and smiling, and my dear old lady said snappishly.

"Boy, don't you have anything more to do than just stand there grinning like an ape? You make me nervous. Do deliver your papers."

So that dream ended.

That is the trouble with old ladies they're inconsistent. They are as likely to leave their money to a favorite cat, dog, or charitable institution as a polite little boy. To inherit money you have to compete with all sorts of things—human as well as non-human. Your biggest competitor is Harvard college. It has inherited $159,336,499.

Perhaps the best way to inherit dough is to marry a rich man and annoy him so much he'll pay you to divorce him. They call it alimony—but it's just like inheriting money.
